Veteran Faculty Member Dies

IRA S. CONDIT, A FAMILIAR figure on the Teachers College campus for nearly half a century, died Saturday, November 8, 1947, at the age of 80.

He served as a professor of mathematics until 1909, when he was made head of the department. In 1922 his department was enlarged to include commercial education subjects. He assumed emeritus status in 1937 as a professor of mathematics, and taught part-time through the 1947 fall quarter. Unusually active, he taught 11 hours of work last fall.

Born in Washington County, Iowa, the son of a pioneer Presbyterian home missionary, he attended the Parsons College preparatory school in Fairfield, Iowa. He received a B.A. degree in 1886 and an M.A. degree in 1889, both from Parsons College.

In 1892 he married Maud Maxwell Clark of Corning, who survives. Mr. Condit leaves a son and two daughters: Brian C. Condit, Cedar

Rain Reigns at Homecoming

DESPITE A WEEK-END OF DRIZZLING days, the 1947 Homecoming was a success. The committee, under the chairmanship of Paul F. Bender, and the student body went "all out" to welcome returning "alums" the week end of October 25.

Giant "pin-ups" of returning 1927 football men adorned all campus lamp posts (see picture); dormitories vied for honors in the decorating contest; organizations competed for prizes in the pre-game parade. As a fitting climax, the Panthers turned back the Morningside Maroons 31 to 13, on the gridiron. Bartlett Hall won the decorating contest, and Nu Omicron Nu Sigma Phi sorority won top honors in the parade.

The popular comedy, "The Late George Apley," played to capacity crowds, October 23, 24 and 25. On Homecoming night students and alums mingled ("What a crowd," they said) at the Homecoming dance in the Commons. And still it rained!

Alumni Meet for Des Moines Reunion

A capacity crowd of 240 persons crowded the Grace Ransom tea room for the alumni-faculty dinner November 8. Feature of the evening was the singing of the Sigma Alpha Iota chorus, shown in the accompanying picture as they arrived by college bus. Miss Sadie B. Campbell, dean of women, extends a welcoming hand.

Alumni Have Free Placement Service

BY E. W. GOETCH

Director of Placement Bureau

Since January 1, 1947, the Iowa State Teachers College, through its placement bureau, has been rendering free placement services to thousands of its graduates. These free services were made possible through the president of the college and the state board of education. In a teacher education institution the placing of its graduates into desirable teaching positions has become an integral part of the teacher training program.

Graduates of Teachers College who have not renewed their registration with the placement bureau for some time will need to fill out a complete set of registration forms in bringing their official confidential credentials up-to-date.

Former graduates of the college who have been registered with the bureau more recently may bring their credentials up-to-date by supplying the bureau with additional personal and academic data and by giving additional references relating to their training and to their teaching experience.

As soon as the registration forms are filled out and returned to the placement bureau and as soon as a desirable number of recommendations have been obtained from the references listed the registrant's name is placed on the active list of available candidates.

Various types of placement services are rendered to the graduates of the Iowa State Teachers College: (1) Credentials are compiled in behalf of registrants and recommendations are made for specific positions at the request of the registrants. (2) Credentials are mailed and specific candidates are recommended at the request of employing school officials. (3) Recommendations of available qualified candidates are made by the placement bureau for vacancies which have been directly reported to the bureau by employing school officials.

(4) Requests from reliable sources for information in behalf of registrants are answered by personal letters or by mailing copies of the registrant's confidential credentials or both. (5) At the request of a registrant the placement bureau will recommend him officially for a bona fide vacancy for which he qualifies and which the registrant reports directly to the bureau. (6) In the event that a registrant's official confidential credentials, if mailed by the bureau, will not reach school officials in time for board action when filling a position for which the registrant is an applicant, the placement Bureau will telephone or wire a summation of the applicant's recommendations to the officials concerned at the request of the registrant.

The first concern of the Placement Bureau is to recommend the best qualified available candidates to school officials. The number of nominations which are given to a registrant is determined largely by the registrant's qualifications as compared with the qualifications of other available registrants, by the number of calls reported to the bureau by employing school officials, and by the types of candidates desired by said officials. However, should a registrant notify the placement bureau that he is especially interested in a certain vacancy, the bureau will recommend him officially as an additional candidate for the position. Registration is effective for one year or as long as the registrant is available.

Whether or not a registrant obtains the position for which the college placement bureau has recommended him depends largely upon the effort he puts forth and upon his academic qualifications and personality. The candidate who responds promptly to notices of vacancies and contacts employing school officials as directed or requested by school officials has a better chance in being placed than the candidate who is less prompt in responding to vacancy notices. It is of extreme importance that a registrant notify the placement bureau as soon as he accepts a position.

The PANTHER PARADE

By Bob McGranahan

AS THE ALUMNUS goes to press Coach O. M. "Hon" Nordly's basketball team is off to a flying start with convincing victories over two North Central conference foes, South Dakota University (54-29), and North Dakota University (53-39). Drake University handed the Panthers' their only loss, 58-49.

Four returning lettermen, Van Combs, Norman Jespersen, Dean Hogeland, and Charlie Riek are regulars in Nordly's smooth working, high scoring combination. Rounding out the starting five is Walt Kochneff, new center, rated one of the best all-round performers in Panther basketball history. The high powered front line of Combs, Jespersen, and Kochneff should shatter every existing Panther scoring record this season. Guards Hogeland and Riek are also potential offensive threats. Tom Chandler, Walt Van Meter, Joe Segar, and Dick Drake are the best reserves.

On the wrestling front, Coach Dave McCuskey has three national titlists, Bill Koll, Bill Nelson, and Gerald Leeman, among the 50 grappling candidates. Five other veterans, Harold Mott, Dick Black, Jim Jensen, LeRoy Alitz, and Neal Johnson, are fighting for starting positions with several promising freshmen.

The McCuskey-men, undefeated in dual meet competition the last three years, finished second in the national tourney in 1946 and 1947.

Two Minnesota state high school champions, Harold DeVries, and DeWaine Silker, are outstanding contenders in the middle weights along with two Hawkeye prep school titlists, Jerry Rohrer and Virgil Rink, from Clarion. Other promising new men include: Charles Burd, Dick Lewis, Bill Smith, and Harlan Roloff.

Plans are taking shape rapidly for the biggest attraction on the Panther spring sport schedule, April 16 and 17. The event: the silver anniversary of the annual Teachers College Relays.

The Panther gridiron men captured another North Central conference title. For Coach C. L. "Buck" Starbeck it was five in a row, a new record for the 24-year-old league.

At the Panther offensive throttle all-conference Bob Williams, triple threat fullback, ran off with individual honors, leading his team mates in five departments. He led the touchdown parade, 42 points; paced the ground gainers, 565 yards; leading passer, 11 completions for 187 yards; best punter, 38.3 yard average; led in total offense, 752 yards.

FORMER CRITICS HAVE HOUSEPARTY

MARY CALDWELL, B.A. '19, a member of the Teachers College teaching department faculty, was hostess to a "house party" reunion of five alumnae, all of whom had critic training work together as students.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING BY THORSON & THORSON, WATERLOO, IOWA

Alumni Envision Beautiful New Chapel

THE BEAUTIFUL BUILDING, SHOWN ABOVE, is the architect's vision of the proposed new chapel to be built on the Iowa State Teachers College campus.

Although the final site is yet to be chosen, the brick and stone chapel will be located in the heart of the campus. Especially designed for personal meditation and for religious group meetings, the chapel will be near the Commons, the Campanile or the women's residence halls.

On succeeding pages you will read more about the new structure—more about the need for such a chapel and the part that you, as a member of the Teachers College family, can play in its realization.

Since state funds cannot be used for its construction, all costs must be met through voluntary contributions of alumni, faculty and students. The class of 1922, under Russell Lamson of Waterloo, has taken the leadership in the campaign to raise $40,000. In addition, faculty and student committees are assisting.

Mr. Lamson has a message for you, as do other representatives of the committee, on the following pages. Read what they have to say, then carefully consider your answer to the pledge blank on page 19, and see the dream of a chapel become a reality at Teachers College.

"Let's Accept The Challenge And Build a New Chapel"

ALL OF US NOW have a golden opportunity to make a tangible contribution to our alma mater by assisting financially in the drive for funds with which to build the new chapel.

We will all have to dig deeply, but I believe that the alumni are willing to put into dollars and cents their expression of loyalty to Teachers College. As chairman of the chapel committee, I have been asked to tell you how the campaign is progressing.

Because of their genuine interest in Teachers College, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth of St. Louis, Mo., have offered the college the sum of ten thousand dollars toward the erection of a small beautiful chapel for individual meditation and religious group meetings.

The committee for the chapel has accepted this gift with the conditions attached to it. Although the chapel will be called the Danforth Chapel, it is not to be a memorial to either Mr. or Mrs. Danforth; rather, it is to symbolize the active interest they have in the cause of religion in higher education.

Mr. Danforth has been interested in the Iowa State Teachers College for some time. He regards it as especially commendatory that Iowa should have only one teachers college. For two successive years he sent a "Danforth Fellow" to work with Dr. Bodein in the religious program of the college. Miss Sarah (Pat) Kirkwood of Waverly, Ala., and Miss Mabel Newlin of China Grove, N. C., were the assistants to the director of religious activities and helped to carry on the college's fine religious program.

Mr. Danforth has given us a challenge, and I believe that the alumni, faculty, and students of Teachers College will accept it. The members of the committee, Mrs. Irene Eaton, Miss Edna Mantor, Mrs. Olive Allison Lillehei and Miss Carrie Watson, concur with me in this opinion. Together with a faculty and a student committee, from whom you are also hearing in this issue of The Alumnus, we expect to raise forty thousand dollars with which to build a really beautiful chapel on our campus.

We have an ambitious goal, but not an impossible one. We hope to finish our campaign this academic year and start construction in time for the chapel to be dedicated at the 1948 Homecoming. That may sound like a dream, but it is a dream that you can make come true.

On page 19 is a pledge blank. Think over this challenge. If the Danforths are sufficiently interested to contribute $10,000 to the fund, how much are you interested? Consider the opinions of the student and faculty representatives and see if you do not share in their opinion as to the need for such a chapel, which could truly be the spiritual center of the campus. Think this over with devotion and fill out your pledge card. When possible, enclose your check with it and mail immediately to the alumni office.

Let's get behind the campaign and make this a real symbol of our belief that religion is central in education, especially at the Iowa State Teachers College.—Russell Lamson, B.A. '22, Chairman of Alumni Chapel Committee.

"The Dream of a Chapel Is Becoming a Reality"

DREAMS DO BECOME REALITIES, and one dream is on its way to becoming a real thing at the Iowa State Teachers College—the dream of a small, beautiful chapel where individuals may go and groups may meet exclusively for meditation and prayer.

On these pages you will see a sketch of the proposed chapel at our college and a drawing of the floor plan. These may not be the final plans, but they do give us an idea of the chapel and its place on the campus. I want to tell you a few things about the building itself.

The structure will be of brick and stone to fit into the general architectural setting of the center of the campus, the Commons, the Women's swimming pool, the dormitories. Thus, no matter where the final site may be the chapel will harmonize with its surroundings. As you face the chapel you will see on the top the cross, the symbol of the Christian religion.

On either side of the entrance are the offices and conference room of the Director of Religious Activities. These are located in the chapel building so that the director will always be available to those who wish to counsel or confer with him. In the foyer of the chapel you will see a copy of that famous picture by Hoffman, "Christ in Gethsemane," the original of which hangs in the Riverside Church in New York City. On the wall of the foyer across from the picture will be this inscription:

*The Danforth Chapel
Dedicated to
The Worship of God
With the Prayer
That Here
In Communion With The Highest
Those Who Enter
May Acquire the Spiritual Power
To Aspire Nobly
Adventure Daringly
Serve Humbly*

Entering the sanctuary of the chapel, you will see toward the front the chancel with the altar and its appointments. On the right is the lectern, on the left the pulpit desk. To the left, in the chancel, is the organ console. On each side of the chancel are places for soloists or perhaps a quartet. Music plays an important role in small group worship and meditation. At the rear of the chancel will be a stained glass window with perhaps the symbol of the cross and the torch. When the chapel is finally finished, we hope to have stained glass in all the windows.

At the rear of the sanctuary there will be a small balcony to seat 20 or 25 persons, while the main floor will seat about 70. This capacity is in keeping with the purpose of the chapel—for individual meditation and small group worship. It is not to take the place of the college auditorium for Sunday chapel service.

Through its architecture, windows, organ, and cross the little chapel will speak to us of the worshippers of the centuries, and it will bear to us the message of the union of the noblest thinking with utter devotion to the heavenly Father.—Vernon J. Bodein, Director of Religious Activities.

"An Objective and Lasting, Means of Expressing Ourselves"

THE LAST SEVEN YEARS HAVE been very trying years in our lives. Many of us have much for which to be thankful. Life has continued against impossible odds, loved ones have returned or we are merely grateful for our lot in life. We welcome an opportunity to express our thankfulness in an objective manner. Or perhaps we have become acquainted with sorrow and we seek some means of perpetuating the memory of a loved one. Again, it may be that we see the importance of stressing spiritual values in our modern society. Perchance, we may have a sense of gratitude toward the college which guided us in our youth.

Whatever our interest may be,—thankfulness, grief, encouragement of spiritual values or general appreciation of the college, the proposed chapel gives us all an objective and lasting means of expressing ourselves. How better can we speak than by uniting and erecting a quiet place where students may meditate, offer devotions and receive divine assurance? Our youth needs this service; the college needs the chapel to render this continuing guidance.—Malcolm Price, President, Iowa State Teachers College.

"We Need Our Batteries Recharged By Meditation"

FOOTBALL GAMES, COMMONS Christmas carol sings, Old Gold dances, symphony concerts—all these will be among my fond memories of life at Iowa State Teachers College. Even the everyday things of going to classes and holding "bull sessions" in the dorm will remain as happy remembrances of college days.

In the midst of all this I am, however, dissatisfied. Does that sound silly? Well, it isn't. I don't think I'm any different from the great number of college students who come to Teachers College. And I am sure that they get like I do, so involved in things of the campus and the goings on in the world that they feel the need to get some kind of integration. But where on our campus can you go off by yourself and recollect your thoughts? I know that there are fine men and women on the campus to whom you can go for counsel. Sometimes we don't need advice from others so much as we just need to be alone and do some meditating on our problems.

I'm writing this because I hope that men and women at Teachers College will not be able to say this a few years from now. They won't be able to write this way because between now and then there will be erected on the campus a beautiful, small chapel where a student can go for private meditation. That is my hope and it is, I am confident, the hope of most of the students here.

I know that outwardly a lot of us may not give evidence of deep religious feeling, but within all of us there is a desire for unity of self and service of ourselves for others. And there are times when we find, as Dr. Bodein pointed out in his sermon on November 2, that we need our "batteries of service" re-charged by meditation and worship.

A small, beautiful chapel, open for the use of anyone, regardless of race, color or creed, will serve the purpose of a place on the campus where a student can retire for a few minutes of meditation. I believe that I speak for the great majority of students here when I say we feel the need for such a chapel. Further, we are willing to back up our belief with cash. The students at Iowa State Teachers College will support this project to the best of their ability—of that I am confident.

Along with many others I hope that Homecoming 1948 will see a new and beautiful chapel on our campus.—Jeanne Granzow, President of the Student Christian Association.

"Needed: A Place Where Man Can Be Alone"

AS I WRITE THESE WORDS to give you the feelings of the faculty about the new chapel, the whole campus is stirring in preparation for its annual Religious Emphasis Week. During the next week our classrooms, our dormitories, and even the campus eating places will hum with discussions of religious ideas as they affect the students who are Iowa's future teachers.

By the time you read this, Religious Emphasis Week will be over. But during that time many of us will have recast our patterns of thinking. Some of our students may have found a truer and deeper need for re-examining their religious beliefs. Some may find a real religion for the first time. And as the weeks wear on, the student discussion groups, the Campus Interdenominational Church, and all our various activities will help these new insights to grow and deepen.

Much as we can gain from others, our lasting religious convictions must come from inside ourselves. The hours we all have sometime spent alone groping toward our own personal beliefs seem to count most. If that be true, then Teachers College has a real need: a place a man can be alone while he searches for his own answers. And after that, a place where small groups can compare the outcome of this thinking. In short, a meditation chapel. Your faculty, at Teachers College, will strongly vouch for that need.

If each of you alumni could see the crowded living conditions, the busy social life, the hurry and rush of study and activities our students live in, you would better understand this need I mention. As Teachers College faces into the job of meeting this great new demand for higher education, we must not fail to provide a place for quiet thinking solitude.

This is something the state cannot do, but Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Danforth have seen our need and have given us a large gift from which to start. Your class of '22, headed by an able committee under Russell Lamsoin, has begun to act. We of the faculty and student body here in Cedar Falls are swinging into an active campaign to erect the foundations of this chapel as soon as possible. But if this need is to be met, and if at Homecoming next year you want to see this chapel standing on your campus, then get behind Mr. Lamson with all the time and money you can afford.—Albert J. Croft, Instructor in Speech.

PLACEMENT BUREAU

All candidates who are former graduates of the Iowa State Teachers College and who are seeking new teaching positions should not be under contract, unless they have been given the assurance that they can be released should they be offered a position which would prove to be a promotion to them. Experienced teachers desiring out-of-state positions should inform the placement bureau as to their preference of location.

Registrants should contact the bureau frequently during the placement season until they have obtained a desirable teaching position. It is the purpose of the placement bureau to render efficient services to the graduates of the college, to the state, and to the nation. These services are determined largely by the continued cooperation of the alumni and former students of the college.
